

Our Alaska Tour

Denali to Anchorage – June 2 2012

Right near the Denali train station was the Denali Visitors Center. We stopped in and looked around a bit before boarding the train to Anchorage.

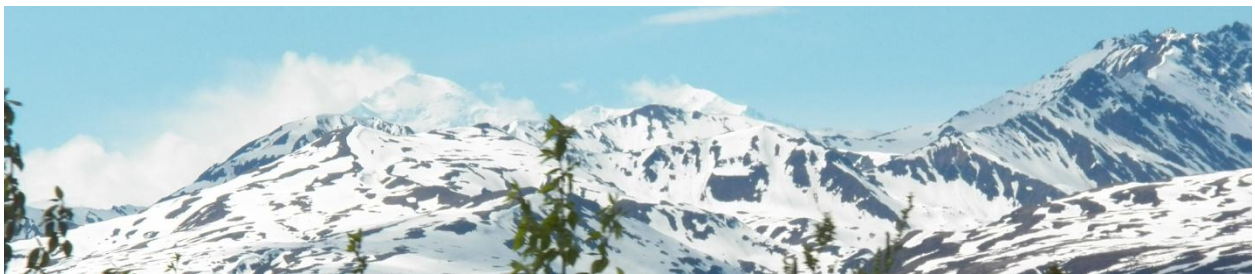

Above: Outside and inside of the Denali Visitors Center.
Below: Mountains near the visitor's center.

Mike was our concierge on the land portion of our journey. We met him at the hotel in Fairbanks and he traveled with us as far as Anchorage. He made sure that our luggage was taken care of, that we got on the right bus, that we got signed up for the right tours, and was there to answer any questions we might have.

Left: Everyone on the train was excited to hear that Mt. McKinley was coming into view. Much of the time it is covered in clouds.

Right: You can see the front of the train as we go around this curve.

Below Right: Sara Palin is not mentioned on the sign as we pass through her home town.
