

Our Alaska Tour

Juneau, AK – June 7, 2012

The ship stopped for a day in Juneau, the capital city of Alaska. Juneau can only be reached by air or sea since there are no roads or railroad going there. We took a tram ride up to the mountain top and after that we spent the afternoon wondering around the downtown area. Here are some pictures of Juneau.

Pictures taken after getting off the tram ride at the top

Left: The Alaska String Band. This is a family band that lives in Alaska. A lot of their music is played in a Blue Grass style but they can play many other styles as well and sing too.

It was a formal night back at the ship so our usual group is all dressed up for dinner.
